

Amazing Spaces

The client wanted to combine kitchen, informal dining and family rooms into one casual, elegant great room. The space needed to comfortably accommodate the hustle and bustle of a busy family of five, and still flow as the gateway connecting eight other adjoining portals of the home. In addition, the clients wanted to maximize the natural light as well as enjoy views of the landscaped back yard.

"To create the room's casual elegance, I designed cabinetry with furniture details, making sure that no one area was visually stronger than another," says Jason Landau. "I disguised many of the utilitarian features like the butler's pantry, television, refrigerator, freezer and dishwasher."

The new design features three separate islands, each playing a dual role—one side functioning as cabinetry, the other side as furniture. Two of the islands define end borders of the kitchen, while the middle is the main food prep area and eat-in counter.
